Dear Bob and Becky:

Molly and I are very pleased to learn that you plan to be with us for the Oklahoma Hall of Fame induction ceremonies on November 12 in Oklahoma City.

Several of our special friends like you from outside Oklahoma are coming and we want all of you to get to know each other in a smaller group and more relaxed setting than will be possible Saturday night at the ceremonies. We are planning a dinner at the Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center in Oklahoma City Friday evening, November 11. The Center includes an outstanding collection of western art. You will be receiving a formal invitation later and we hope that you can join us.

During the morning, Saturday, November 12, we also plan to make available an optional tour of some of the interesting places in the surrounding area including the historic territorial capital city of Guthrie which has been preserved much as it was in the 1890's.

The most convenient hotel location for those attending the Hall of Fame ceremonies is the Sheraton Century Hotel in downtown Oklahoma City where many of our guests will be staying. It does get booked up very quickly for that weekend but if you would like for us to do so, we will make sure that a room is held for you.

I've enclosed a reply card for you to let me know how we can best help to make your trip an enjoyable one.

Most of all, Molly and I look forward to seeing you and sharing this special time with us.

Sincerely,

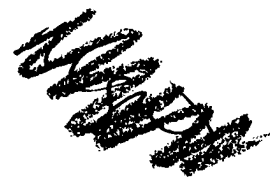

David E. Boren

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Gates,

Senator David Boren will be inducted into the Oklahoma Hall of Fame on November 12, 1988, and will be presented for induction by Senator Sam Nunn of Georgia. Induction into the Hall of Fame is a special honor which has been awarded to very few Oklahomans over the years. The ceremonies are rebroadcast on statewide television. As table hosts for Senator Boren, we have the privilege of inviting you to attend the Hall of Fame Banquet and be seated in his section. We know that it would mean a great deal to Senator Boren to be able to share the evening with special friends like you. The banquet will be held in the Myriad Convention Center in downtown Oklahoma City. Dress for the occasion will be black-tie. Doors to the banquet hall will open at 6:30 p.m. and dinner will be served promptly.

All of those attending the banquet will be invited to attend the after-party which takes place in the Great Hall of the Myriad immediately following the banquet. There you will have the opportunity to personally congratulate Senator Boren and the other honorees and to meet Senator Nunn and the other persons presenting the inductees.

A brochure on the banquet, containing an order form for reservations, is enclosed for your convenience in ordering tickets. The size of the section reserved for Senator Boren is limited and reservations will be taken on a first-come, first-served basis. The demand for reservations is great each year, and we strongly recommend that you make your reservations as early as possible.

We know that you share our appreciation for Senator Boren's public service and we sincerely hope you will be able to join us on this meaningful occasion.

Sincerely,

Henry Zarrow

Topic: SPY VS. SPY

Sen. David Boren, 47, D-Okla., is chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee. He says one of his goals is to build a national consensus on intelligence issues. Boren has promised that his committee, which oversees the U.S. intelligence community, won't be a "rubber stamp" for government agencies or the president. Boren was interviewed by USA TODAY's Sam Meddis.

Smaller budgets mean bigger spying threat

USA TODAY: Since relations between the Soviet Union and the USA are warming, does that mean we can expect the Soviets to relax their intelligence threat against us?

BOREN: Not at all. It may seem like a paradox, but as we're warming relations, making progress on arms control and lowering military budgets, we're going to see an escalation of the intelligence race.

USA TODAY: Why?

BOREN: They're going to be trying to spend fewer dollars. That means they'd better have an idea of the new technologies we're developing in the military area. They're going to have greater incentive to try to steal our secrets in the short run, to get our technology on the cheap, just as they were able to do, for example, through the Walker spy case, where they got billions of dollars of technology without having to pay for it. So, as we take advantage of the new openings in diplomacy, we're going to have to be very, very watchful in the intelligence area.

USA TODAY: What does the next administration have to do in order to protect our technology?

BOREN: The CIA guards our secrets overseas in places like our embassies. The FBI guards against spying here in the United States. They must work together. We must also upgrade our satellite system. We need to know exactly what's going on on the other side. We're going to have tight military budgets. If they're developing some new weapons system, we need to know about it so we can spend our dollars most wisely in countering it instead of wasting a lot of money by spending across the board. So we have on our hands a major need to modernize our satellite systems and our national technical means.

USA TODAY: With limited budgets, instead of pursuing "Star Wars," should we be pursuing "Spy Wars" now?

BOREN: That may be one way of putting it. I don't know that we can afford to avoid research on the Strategic Defense Initiative, or "Star Wars." We have to keep pace with research in case the other side scores some major breakout. But at the same time, spending on "Spy Wars," improving our satellite systems and our national technical means, is money very well spent. One dollar spent there can save you $10 in your military budget, because you can find out what are the new systems they're developing. The more information you have, the more you can learn how to counter those new systems. Therefore, you can target your money.

USA TODAY: Has U.S. intelligence been improved to the point that it would be difficult for U.S. spies to sell our secrets to the Soviets?

BOREN: We've made very significant progress, partly because we have improved congressional oversight at our end of the avenue and a greater level of cooperation now with the executive branch. Hopefully, we'll never see another incident as we saw when we had a defector who returned to the Soviet Union and it was unclear as to who was supposed to be keeping track of him, the CIA or the FBI. And we didn't know for several hours what had even happened to him. That's the kind of failure of communication that's very, very damaging to us.

USA TODAY: What kind of intelligence adversary is Mikhail Gorbachev?

BOREN: Mr. Gorbachev is highly intelligent. He's the kind of person who has been getting his own intelligence apparatus under control, quite obviously, through the KGB and other agencies of the intelligence organization. He's going to make sure that they are politically loyal to him. He is the kind of person who understands that in tight budgets, you spend your money with efficiency.

USA TODAY: So you expect him to operate the same kind of intelligence strategy as the USA?

BOREN: He won't spend any rubles that he doesn't have to spend. We're up against a very tough, cagey adversary. He's a man who wants to reform the system and bring about some changes that, in the long run, are going to make for better relations with the United States. But, in the meantime, we have to be on the alert. He has a lot of motivation here to engage in espionage, to get to new technology without having to pay for it.

RE: Dinner Invitation
 Senator David Boren
 Induction Into the Oklahoma Hall of Fame
 Oklahoma City
 Saturday, 12 November

Vice President of the Oklahoma Heritage Association, Henry Zarrow and his wife Anne, have invited you to attend Senator David Boren's induction into the Oklahoma Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City on Saturday, 12 November. Senator Sam Nunn will present the award to Senator Boren. Approximately 2000 are expected to attend.

Senator Boren is one of eight individuals who will be honored by the Association at this event. (See brochure opposite.) We also have learned that some 1500 invitations were issued on his behalf. Since you are not speaking at the dinner nor do you have plans to be in the Oklahoma City area at that time, I do not think it is necessary for you to attend. Given your heavy schedule this fall, I believe that you could decline this invitation and still continue your effective relationship with the Senator. I suggest, however, that when you meet with Senator Boren in September you mention that you will not be able to attend his induction. OCA concurs and will note in your talking points for your next meeting with the Senator. Bob Gates also was invited and plans to regret the invitation. If you agree with my recommendation, attached is a letter of regret for your signature.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Gates,

Senator David Boren will be inducted into the Oklahoma Hall of Fame on November 12, 1988, and will be presented for induction by Senator Sam Nunn of Georgia. Induction into the Hall of Fame is a special honor which has been awarded to very few Oklahomans over the years. The ceremonies are rebroadcast on statewide television. As table hosts for Senator Boren, we have the privilege of inviting you to attend the Hall of Fame Banquet and be seated in his section. We know that it would mean a great deal to Senator Boren to be able to share the evening with special friends like you. The banquet will be held in the Myriad Convention Center in downtown Oklahoma City. Dress for the occasion will be black-tie. Doors to the banquet hall will open at 6:30 p.m. and dinner will be served promptly.

All of those attending the banquet will be invited to attend the after-party which takes place in the Great Hall of the Myriad immediately following the banquet. There you will have the opportunity to personally congratulate Senator Boren and the other honorees and to meet Senator Nunn and the other persons presenting the inductees.

A brochure on the banquet, containing an order form for reservations, is enclosed for your convenience in ordering tickets. The size of the section reserved for Senator Boren is limited and reservations will be taken on a first-come, first-served basis. The demand for reservations is great each year, and we strongly recommend that you make your reservations as early as possible.

We know that you share our appreciation for Senator Boren's public service and we sincerely hope you will be able to join us on this meaningful occasion.

Sincerely,

Henry Zarrow

Anne Zarrow
